Company Research Sheet

Twenty unhurried minutes here beats an hour of nervous scrolling the night before. Fill what you can; blanks are allowed — you're learning, not grading.

COMPANY _____ ROLE _____ RESEARCHED ON _____

WHERE I LOOKED (AND HOW FRESH IT WAS)

- [ ] their own site — about page, careers page, and the full job posting
- [ ] recent news or announcements, ideally from the last 6 months
- [ ] the interviewer's or team's public profile (only what's public)
- [ ] reviews or customer stories I trust enough to repeat
- [ ] plus anything the recruiter or confirmation email mentioned

WHAT THEY ACTUALLY DO, IN MY OWN WORDS

THREE THINGS THEY SEEM PROUD OF RIGHT NOW

THE PROBLEM THIS ROLE EXISTS TO SOLVE

Read the posting like a wish list whispering a pain point.

PEOPLE I'LL LIKELY MEET

MY HONEST FIT CHECK — THREE BOXES, NOT A VERDICT

- [ ] I can name one thing here that genuinely fits me.
- [ ] There's one thing I still can't picture (worth asking in the room).
- [ ] I could tell a friend why I applied to this one, in one sentence.

> A company is allowed to stay a little mysterious. You just need to show up curious about the parts you can see — and stuck facts can turn into interview questions on the questions-to-ask sheet.
